LINDBERGH IS MARRIED

Lone Eagle and Anne Morrow Again Steal a March On the Press—Ceremony At Englewood
Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, were married at the bride's home in Englewood, N. J., yesterday afternoon.
The ceremony, witnessed by only a few friends in addition to the immediate family, was performed by Rev. William Adams Brown, of Union Theological Seminary, New York City. Immediately afterward, Ambassador Morrow left for Washington. The honeymoon plans of the couple were kept secret. The bride wore a simple white chiffon dress, with short veil. She wore no gloves, but carried a bouquet of blue larkspur plucked from the Morrow garden.
Apparently decided upon the spur of the moment, the ceremony took even the most intimate neighbors of the Morrrows by surprise and completely scooped the small army of reporters and news photographers who for weeks have looked forward to depicting the romantic event in great detail in print and picture.
There were no bridesmaids, no best man, no music. It was stated authoritatively. Just the brief ceremony of the Presbyterian Church.
Besides the bride couple and the clergyman five people were present at the wedding. They were Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow, their daughters, Elizabeth and Constance and Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the aviator.
The first news of the ceremony came in an announcement from Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow. It said simply: "Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow announce the marriage of their daughter, Anne, to Charles A. Lindbergh, at Englewood, N. J., May 27, 1929."
News of the wedding came as a complete surprise. No advance announcement of the date had been made, although there had been many newspaper guesses, most of which had favored mid-June.
It was all the more surprising since every large newspaper of the section and some considerable distances away have besieged the Morrrows estate since the family first moved there this month and followed them to the Maine summer home and back. In addition, many news picture agencies have kept photographers in close proximity for weeks.

Belief that the Lone Eagle and his bride would come to North Haven for their honeymoon caused a close watch to be kept of the Morrow estate last night. The summer home was in darkness, however, and it was stated with authority that the couple had not arrived here. Hubert O. Grant, caretaker of the Dwight W. Morrow summer estate, admitted frankly that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh are expected at North Haven during the summer, but was equally positive that he did not know when.
North Haven residents were just as much surprised as the reporters, for they had been living in pleasurable anticipation that the wedding would take place at the Morrow summer home. It is still believed that the wedding would have taken place there but for the recent persistence of the visiting newspaper men and photographers, some of whom were addicted to distinct "freshness."
The Courier-Gazette's congratulations are as just as hearty as though it had not also been "scooped."

INDIGNANT DENIAL

North Haven Teacher Says She Did Not Photograph Lindy and Anne
Editor of the Courier-Gazette:—To whom it may concern: The rumors contained in a communication published by The Courier-Gazette, Saturday were false. Our teacher from the neighboring island did not take a picture of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow and furthermore if she had, she would not sell the picture for ten times $50.
Our teacher feels that the North Haven "Citizen" owes her a personal apology, as he or she is the one who should be so "heartily ashamed."
They say "a word to the wise is sufficient" so in the future it would be desirable to verify all statements before placing them before the eyes of the public.

ARREST IN CALL CASE

Important Evidence Found By Rockland Deputy Brings Bradford Doctor Into Court

Investigation of the death of Mrs. Lillian A. Call took an unexpected turn Saturday when Dr. F. A. Bickford of Bradford, Me., was arrested on a manslaughter charge. A preliminary examination was held in Bangor, where Dr. Bickford pleaded "not guilty," and was released on bail in the sum of $10,000. The sureties were Dr. Bickford's wife and John P. Kelley of Bangor. The warrant was issued from Bangor Municipal Court, and bore the signature of Deputy Sheriff C. Earle Ludwick of Rockland.
When Mrs. Call, in her deathbed statement, had failed to reveal the name of the person who had performed the alleged criminal operation upon her, it was very generally considered that the authorities would not be able to penetrate the blank wall which stood between them and the facts in the case. In other words it was the current opinion that the case was closed.
Last Wednesday Deputy Sheriff Ludwick and Frank J. Ragan of the attorney general's office visited several towns in the vicinity of Bangor and conducted a quiet investigation which offered no apparent satisfaction, and even the officials felt that they were on a vain chase.
With the skill and persistence for which he is fast gaining a statewide reputation, Deputy Ludwick approached the case from another angle, and came upon evidence which is said to have furnished the connecting link. When he informed the attorney general's office of his discovery there was a hurried trip to Bradford, one of the town's already visited, and Dr. Bickford's arrest by Deputy Ludwick and Deputy Sheriff Edgerly of Penobscot County followed.
Frank A. Tirrell, who is now considered one of the State's best criminal lawyers, was engaged by Mr. Ragan to represent the State at the Bangor hearing, which was held before Recorder Mark A. Barwise.
The nature of the evidence which led to Dr. Bickford's arrest was not divulged.

THREE INSPECTORS APPOINTED

One of Them Will Have Headquarters in Rockland—William Burgess of Waterville the Man

Secretary of State Edgar C. Smith was in the city yesterday with the welcome announcement that one of the three additional State Highway Police inspectors, recently authorized, will be assigned to the territory between Bath and Belfast, with headquarters in Rockland. Selected for that purpose is William Burgess of Waterville, who has been on patrol duty for a number of years, his last route being Waterville to Augusta.
William Gibson of Calais has been assigned to the Washington County district, and George F. Dyer of Bangor will cover Aroostook. In all there will be nine inspectors, whose duty is to check up on registrations and operators licensed away to cooperate with the State Highway Police. The personnel of the State Highway Police department includes about 60 men, exclusive of the inspectors, who are assigned to the Secretary of States department.
The inspectorship of the Rockland district will probably be a year-round job, owing to the fact that the district is open most of the winter.
The assignment of an inspector for this district is hailed with much satisfaction.

FOR RURAL CHILDREN

Excellent Work Being Done In Knox County By Miss Burroughs.

The religious classes which are held weekly in the three district schools of Cushing, will be taught as usual Tuesday afternoon. The classes in the schools of Clark Island and Wheeler's Bay will be held Wednesday afternoon, a change of time being necessary because of the holiday on Thursday.
Rev. James L. Corson and Miss Villa C. Burroughs visited on Sunday the churches and Sunday Schools of South Hope, Union, and Washington, speaking in the interests of the rural children.
Plans are being made to conduct Daily Bible Schools in Hope Corner, South Hope, and East Union during June and July, and Washington, West Washington, Burketville and Razzorville in August.
At the tri-district meeting of the Sunday Schools of the county which was held last Wednesday, Miss Burroughs gave a demonstration of Daily Bible School work held last summer. The primary children of the First Baptist Church, Mrs. Walter Snow and Miss Violet Martin assisted in this demonstration. The Sunday Schools of the county through its representatives resolved to indorse and to financially assist in the work which Miss Burroughs is doing for the rural children.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Me., May 28, 1929.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydell, who on oath declared that he is Treasurer in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of May 25, 1929, there was printed a total of 6284 copies.

Before me, FRANK H. MILLER,
Notary Public.

Honour the Lord with thy substance and with the first fruits of all thine increase.—Proverbs 3:9.

Few who write to the newspaper realize that thirty lines will secure a hundred readers, while half a column secures one.

Walter C. Emerson, 66, who was found dead in his bed at Squirrel Island last Wednesday morning, was a well-known newspaper man and author, intimately known to Rockland friends with whom he had been associated in the politics and public life of Maine. His death was due to heart disease. Mr. Emerson was employed for 20 years in the newspaper business, including the Portland Press and New York Herald, Boston Herald and at four different times covered the international yacht races. He was author of the recent book "Maine Beautiful." He was born in Waterville, and educated at Colburn Classical Institute and Colby College, being graduated from the latter in 1884. In college he was interested in all forms of athletics and especially prominent in baseball and track. Aside from his work, Mr. Emerson was interested in politics and in 1892 was elected to the Maine House and later held other offices. In 1912 he was one of the first Maine Republicans to line up with the late Theodore Roosevelt and was a speaker in that campaign. His last newspaper work was as managing editor of the Boston Herald and for the past 12 years he had lived on Squirrel Island and devoted his time to writing. A brilliant man and a good friend was Walter Emerson. Many Knox County friends will learn with regret of his death.

Plans for the closing program of Newton (Mass.) Theological Institute have been completed. The first event is the baccalaureate service on Sunday, June 2, to be given at the First Baptist meeting house by President Everett C. Herrick of the institute. Tuesday, June 4, is alumni day and will be devoted to the annual business meeting, a memorial service and conference, and the annual dinner. In the evening Bishop Charles L. Slattery will speak on "The Lost Sheep." Commencement Day is Wednesday, June 5. The exercises will be held in the morning at the Baptist Church with addresses by members of the graduating class. The occasional address will be made by professor James P. Berkeley. At noon there will be a trustees' luncheon and later the president and Mrs. Herrick will be at home.

Since those green blinds and shutters went into place a clear idea of the beauty of the Bok Nurses' Home as a piece of pure colonial architecture is manifested. The work of construction is close to its finishing stages and the contractor expects to turn over the keys at the appointed contract time, which is early in June. Mr. Hutchins, the architect, is in the city today meeting the building committee and checking up final details. There will be later some form of public dedication of the home, but this will not take place until after the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Bok at their summer residence, which will be about June 18th.

There is a considerable amount of house building going on in the city. Here and there houses are springing up, mostly small ones. The building of large houses seems to have had its day. Many that now and then come into the market are changed into two-apartment houses that rent at a neat figure. If the houses built here in the past four or five years were to be listed in print the showing would astonish the reader. And the matter of architecture also has had attention. The cottage form of homes has been given highly attractive treatment, presenting evidences of taste such as greatly contributes to the good looks of the community.

There were 90 present at the annual children's party given by Edwin Libby Relief Corps Thursday afternoon at Grand Army hall. Games, indoor and outdoor, followed by a pleasing program of recitations, drills, musical numbers, etc. Refreshments were served from tables gay with American flags and the sight of those 90 children was a goodly one to see. Miss Madeline Rogers and Mrs. Nellie Higgins had charge of the games and entertainment, with Mrs. Ellen Plummer in charge of refreshments. The ladies of the Corps lending valuable assistance.

One of the big Sikorsky planes which is to carry millionaires and lesser folk between New York and Bar Harbor this season, arrived here Saturday, and there was a big rush to the Public Landing to see how folks travel de luxe. The plane flew so low that everybody had a good look at it.—Pilot Winepaw's amphibian, which has been doing a sky office business since the Curtis Flying Service placed Rockland on its map, is being given a thorough overhauling today, and will be back on the air Wednesday.

Ping pong is said by sporting authorities to be coming back into favor. Thirty years ago the game was a familiar acquaintance of every Rockland home. In a manner of speaking everybody played it. One recalls that there were some very skillful players, among them George E. Torrey, who bore some reputation as a local champion of the game. There is every good reason for a revival of the game, the exercise of which benefits nerves, muscle and vision.

Edward W. Berry is among the early generation of readers to whom The Courier-Gazette's story of the Commercial House fire, printed in Saturday's issue, appealed. "I was only four years old," said Mr. Berry, "but I clearly recall my father bringing me down-town next morning and showing me the smoldering ruins—and I remember the general feeling of excitement that the crowd of people exhibited. It was my first fire, and it made a great impression on me."

HONORED VETERANS

Forty Club Paid Tribute to
Rev. R. H. Hayden Spoke
—The Gardiner Heyira

"We pledge to you that in years to come after you have gone and so long as this club may endure a pause will be made each year at this Memorial Day season in the honor of you men and the deeds you have done," said Col. Walter H. Butler yesterday in welcoming the delegation from Edwin Libby Post, G.A.R., who were guest guests of the day. Col. Butler's speech made a deep impression on the club members and visitors alike. Col. William P. Hurley, commander of the Post, responded feelingly for the veterans. Special decorations and songs of the Civil War were the order of the day. In the honor guest group besides Col. Hurley were Adj. E. S. Philbrick (who was yesterday celebrating his 60th anniversary of baptism of blood and fire), William H. Maxey, Eugene Ryder, H. R. Huntley, Fred Snow, Allen Kelley and Estabrook Pease.

The speaker of the day was Rev. Ralph H. Hayden of Camden, who presented his inimitable French-Canadian recollections to the delight of oldsters and youngsters alike and was cheered again and again. Mr. Hayden paid his tribute to the memories and heroes of the Civil War and concluded with a brief but impressive talk on the service being rendered America by the young manhood of today "who carry the torch." A 100 per cent post card shower was given by the club members.

At 3.30 yesterday afternoon a motorcade carrying 25 Forty Club men started for Gardiner on a dinner and howling visit with the Forty Club of that town. The dinner proved to be exceptionally attractive, featuring turkey served at the Johnson House and the meeting to follow was a rousing success. The president of the Gardiner club is a Vinalhaven boy, Ralph Calderwood, now very successfully engaged in the grocery business.

The evening was devoted to bowling and the results were remarkable in many ways. Both second teams eclipsing the first teams on occasion and third teams shining on the bench with endless advice. Plans are in the making for the annual ladies' meeting and field day which will this year be held at Rockland.

MRS. F. L. S. MORSE
Phyllis Tolman Morse, wife of F. L. S. Morse, died May 22 at the New England Deaconess Hospital, Boston. Her health had not been good for several years, but her collapse was a shock to the family and the community.

Mrs. Morse was a daughter of Jesse A. and the late Minnie (Packard) Tolman and was born June 22, 1892 at the Tolman Homestead, West Meadows, Rockland. Attending the Rockland schools, she graduated from the High School in 1910. For a number of years she managed her father's household and meantime built up a profitable business. Her beautiful and tasteful work became well known throughout the community and in many other parts of the State.

July 22, 1922, she was married to F. L. S. Morse, superintendent of schools for the St. George district. Her married life was one of unusual happiness. The year following her marriage, she acquired a residence adjoining that of her husband at Morse's Corner, which was renovated and modernized. Her efforts made this attractive and beautiful home a joy to her family and friends.

In 1906 she joined Pleasant Valley Grange where she held office for several years. She also served as secretary of Limerock Valley Pomona Grange. She was a member of the Universalist Church from which the funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, with Rev. C. A. Knickerbocker officiating. The floral tributes were profuse, testifying to the high esteem in which Mrs. Morse was held. Very active and energetic, she was liberal of her time and effort and was never so happy as when serving others.

WON COMMENDABLE VICTORY

Volunteers At Sea View Cemetery Routed the Enemy—
What is Being Done At Old Burying Ground

A vigorous raid headed by Oscar S. Duncan stoutly supported by a group of the faithful was made on the unshorn and dispirited sections of Sea View cemetery of a recent morning, the first assault being made at 7 o'clock and the final skirmish coming shortly before noon when the last load of debris was sunk. Thus the spring offensive of the Sea View Cemetery Association was brought to a conclusion and the plans for the summer are being made. The Association was formed informally by a number of citizens who regretted to see the beautiful old burying ground growing up to weeds and vines and the movement has steadily gained adherents. Its officers serve without pay, working in cooperation with the city's park commissioners, as it is a public cemetery. The city however has never had funds for its care as it is located mainly in the town of Rockport and due to its age and removal of families a majority of the graves went years without attention.

The new association with the help of the city highway department has worked wonders thus far, and is steadily though of necessity with moderation in further improvement. The avenues have been made passable and will sometime be gravelled, and in some instances straightened and widened. The association is not in a position to make major improvements but seeks to make the yard presentable, keep the forgotten lots reasonably moved and in as many instances as possible locate families and arrange for perpetual care as at each season's attention. It interferes with no existing agency, merely seeking to better conditions.

The first task was tremendous as almost the whole area was overgrown and the huge pile of debris testifies to the size of the job. All last summer and late into the fall the work was carried forward, one workman being employed steadily. Many loads of the material he accumulated were hauled off in the skiff mentioned the big truck of the Rockland Awning Co. being proffered for the work. Several sections of the iron fence of the northern section were reset, new holes being drilled for the purpose. The Rockport section of the cemetery is also coming in for its annual cleaning. Charles E. Gregory did a fine piece of work there last year. The Sea View Cemetery Association is open to all persons interested, its entrance fee being $2 and the annual dues $1. This money is entirely used for the benefit of the yard. The incorporation papers are in process to perpetuate the organization. Any person wishing to join or any person wishing to pay dues should mail notice to Charles H. Morse, treasurer, at the city building.

Myron J. Hahn has been a wheel-horse in the work through his remarkable knowledge of the families of the community and his intimate acquaintance with the cemetery itself. He has devoted many hours to the problem of finding relatives of those persons interred long ago and forgotten. In many instances he has found the living entirely unaware of the existence of the neglected lot and entirely willing to cooperate. Many of the fine old monuments, long disfigured with moss and alga, were immediately again due to cleaning.

The chairman of the executive board, the main driving force of the work is Alderman Duncan who finds many anxious to cooperate. John M. Richardson is president and Mrs. Grace Farrell is secretary of the association.

MRS. CHARLES H. BERRY
Georgia (Emery), widow of Charles H. Berry, died Saturday at her home on Talbot avenue, after a long period of ill health, aged 76 years. The funeral services will be held at the residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Charles A. Knickerbocker of the Universalist Church officiating.

The deceased was a native of South Thomaston and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Emery. Her marriage to Mr. Berry in 1870 brought her into relationship with a family which had loomed largely in Rockland's business affairs, ranking for many years as one of the city's largest tax paying estates and flourishing prominently in many public enterprises not the least of which was the proprietorship of the Thorndike Hotel, which for several generations has been one of the leading hostleries in the State. Her late husband was for a time half owner of this institution. The death of Mr. Berry left the widow possessed of important real estate interests, the management of which she supervised personally, with the assistance of her nephew, Charles A. Emery, a skilled accountant and real estate expert.

Mrs. Berry was devoted to her church—the Church of Immanuel—and looking back over a long period of years the survivors recall her diligent and self-sacrificing efforts in its behalf. Her affiliation with several social organizations for many years brought her into prominence as one of the city's social leaders.

Mrs. Berry is survived by two sons, John T. and Charles H. Berry, Jr.; and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Horton of Montclair, N. J.

One by one our Rockland citizens are tasting the delights of flying. In no long time all will have had a go at it. So it was with the automobile. Most of us can recall out of that early time the familiar sight of Dr. Britto's car—the first in town—getting stalled on Main street and the feeling of daring adventure with which one accepted the doctor's invitation to "take a ride."

Locally, the spring is backward. It generally is. Does anybody let out his furnace fire before the first of June? Not if he is wise. But the birds, riotous with song, are here in their accustomed multitudes, grass on the lawn rises luxuriantly to the mower, leaves on the trees need only a day or two of brilliant sun for bursting into complete foliage, and in a manner of speaking, all's well with the world.

Golfers in increasing numbers made the weekend busy at the Country Club, giving promise of an active season when things really get going. The changes made in several of the holes, with accompanying lengthening of the course, is going correspondingly to lengthen individual scores. Forty-one boys and girls, devotees of the Friday evening Story Hour at the Public Library, chaperoned by Miss Margaret Snow and Miss Hazel Marshall, started Saturday afternoon after school for their annual picnic. The activities began with a "hare and hound race," but the bounds were not as keen on the scent as they should have been, for the trail of papers and arrows was lost and a large part of the Southend and Ingraham Hill was traversed before the destination was finally reached. After supper was disposed of, a ball game with Dicky French and Bill Glover as rival captains was played. When the game was called because of darkness at the end of the first inning, the score stood 5 to 0 in favor of Dicky's men. The bikers arrived home at 8.30, very weary, but exceedingly happy. Next Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock, the younger children of the Saturday Morning Story Hour will hold their picnic. Any boy or girl who has been present at the story hour this year is invited. Parents or friends who will furnish cars to transport these youngsters to the picnic grounds, are asked to communicate with Miss Marshall at the Library.

The relatives of the late Mrs. Olive (Little-hale) Young wish in this manner to express their gratitude for all who have been so kind and sympathetic in their hour of bereavement; and especially those who at the funeral remembered her love for flowers.

Forty-one boys and girls, devotees of the Friday evening Story Hour at the Public Library, chaperoned by Miss Margaret Snow and Miss Hazel Marshall, started Saturday afternoon after school for their annual picnic. The activities began with a "hare and hound race," but the bounds were not as keen on the scent as they should have been, for the trail of papers and arrows was lost and a large part of the Southend and Ingraham Hill was traversed before the destination was finally reached. After supper was disposed of, a ball game with Dicky French and Bill Glover as rival captains was played. When the game was called because of darkness at the end of the first inning, the score stood 5 to 0 in favor of Dicky's men. The bikers arrived home at 8.30, very weary, but exceedingly happy. Next Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock, the younger children of the Saturday Morning Story Hour will hold their picnic. Any boy or girl who has been present at the story hour this year is invited. Parents or friends who will furnish cars to transport these youngsters to the picnic grounds, are asked to communicate with Miss Marshall at the Library.

A PRAYER FOR THOSE THAT FLY

[For The Courier-Gazette]
O gracious Father and our God,
Thou presence everywhere,
Assured bring to sons of men,
On land, on sea, in air,
For those who fly their eagles soar,
Birdmen, swift-winged in air,
Through fog and storm, through cloud and rain,
For these we lift our prayer,
Thou dwellest, Lord, amid the stars,
Thou walkest on the sea,
With him who braves the perils great,
Wherever he may be,
When anxious thought for loved ones dear,
And for the heart alarms,
Be this our faith, that underneath
Are everlasting arms.

For those who sail their ships in air,
Hear this our burdened plea,
That they may safely make their course
O'er continent and sea.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physically weak. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Texas Guinan will make her first appearance in "Queen of Night Clubs" today. Packed from start to finish with tense drama, thrills and heart appeal, "Strange Cargo," Pathé's first all-talking picture, will be at Strand Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. The plot has to do with the mysterious slaying of the owner of a palatial pleasure yacht while on a voyage to the Azores. When last seen, the man is talking to his friends in a brilliantly illuminated salon. The lights go out suddenly, a groan is heard and when lights are brought the man had vanished!

Every passenger is suspected and a searching investigation is made, in the course of which strange happenings occur. How the assassin is discovered makes one of the most amazing climaxes ever seen on the screen. The action is dramatic and swift-moving, while the dialogue and sound effects are novel and highly impressive.—adv.

"Hardboiled Rose" tells a dramatic story of the aristocracy of New Orleans and of a tragedy brought to one of the city's "first families" by the menacing shadow of a roulette wheel. Myrna's father, in the film, steals bonds from his bank to pay a big gambling debt, and then shoots himself. The daughter's lover takes the guilt of the bond stealing upon himself to shield the suicide's honor in the eyes of the stricken widow. It is to save her lover that the gentle, convent-bred girl transforms herself into the hardboiled girl of the title and goes to the gambling house to recover the stolen bonds. She is plunged into a series of colorful and dramatic incidents that keep the interest at fever heat until the very end. Two Vitaphone acts, news and comedy complete the program.—adv.

Former Rockport Man Superintends Fore River Yard Launchings

"Tell us the story of Upham, the man who launches the ships," said the voice of Public Demand.

Stories are woven around the unusual character, Upham, qualifying several times in the past, one of which is his record of launching numbering upward of a hundred steel ships without accident or failure. He qualifies, too, as of unusual type in maintaining an even balance these long years after success in his life's work has come to him as this incident relates.

Popularly called "Percy" and listed formerly in the directory as Robert P. he was asked if the "P" stood for Percival.

"Not by a jug-full," he shot back. "Percy, every time."

So it is that he preserves intact the name that adorned him in days of lesser attainment, even though his "Down East" accent puts it as "Preece."

Upham again revealed the unusual on being asked to pass judgment on a new "gadjet" for use in launching ships. When shown the contrivance and queried as to what he knew about it he unhesitatingly answered: "I know but little."

Percy Upham will be enrolled in the Fore River Plant's 25-year club on June 6, on which day he will round out a quarter century there.

He hailed originally from Rockport, Maine, where he was born on May 2, 1875. The rudiments of the shipwright's craft were acquired in the far-famed yard of Carlton, Norwood, Co., in Rockport, on the Maine coast.

At that yard he worked on the "onset" and heaviest wood ship of the day, the schooner Frederick Billings. Such was the sharpness of competition in those days that Billings held the record for only three months, a rival shipbuilder increasing a ship on the stocks purposely to surpass her.

Upham tells the tales of "the good old days" when men worked in weather 10 degrees below zero and liked it. Boring holes on a piece-work basis with a large augur was the stunt that made the boys sweat with in while making their outer shirts with frost a half inch thick.

This master-craftsman has been a pioneer in launching ships scientifically. The customary opposition of practical men to the application of science in construction work has never been practiced by him. On the contrary, Upham has been ahead of the procession and has urged and aided the adoption of technical considerations with the drafting of plans prior to the launch.

Resourcefulness is highly developed in him owing to the demands of his daily work. Only recently he earned new laurels when he pressed into use a wigwam of sheet steel, a highly ingenious device used in the launching of a 10,000 ton collier.

Tide heights made imperative an early hour for the launch set at 9:45 a. m. Awake at daybreak, Upham greeted the tempestuous weather with knitted brow, yet his agile mind functioned unerringly and without delay he appeared on the job with a crew of skilled artisans.

In making the grease that slides the ship into the river stick to the ways after the tide rises, it is essential that it be applied to a dry surface to gain perfect adhesion. Yet the wind howled beneath the craft, the rain fell in sheets and the clock ticked relentlessly onward.

But Upham was equal to the occasion. Rolling up a thin steel plate in a conical shape, he punctured a hole in the top, a la-wigwam fashion, and made a door near the base with an open bottom.

Covering a few feet of the ground ways with this tent-like kiln, he threw in some chips and then some wood and soon the smoke was wafting its way merrily out the top. The ground way was dried, the grease applied and what's more, it stuck fast when the tide rose higher and covered it.

It was a critical period to be sure, but as the fatal minute of 9:44 a. m. rolled round the vital role piece was cut by four husky shipwrights.

At 9:44 1/2 the hydraulic jacks were limbered up, but all too late, for at 9:45 the mighty ship quivered free from bondage and unaided, slid into the sea at the appointed hour.

Of such is Robert Percy Upham, veteran master shipwright of the Fore River Plant, who treats all craft with equal success whether it be a 33,000 ton naval vessel or a 100 ton float, and without fuss or fluster but with the utmost ease.

As a citizen he leads a quiet life making his home with Mrs. Upham at 27 Edison street, Quincy Point—Quincy (Mass.) Evening News.

From this skimpy inconvenient stove

to THIS Gold Medal Glenwood—2 Ranges in 1

GLENWOOD Ranges began to "Make Cooking Easy" fifty years ago... The first Glenwood improvement in the little old box stoves of 1879, was an oven that could be depended on for even baking. Today you can entrust a whole meal to the watchful care of the AutomatiCook on your Gold Medal Glenwood, and when you come back, it will be even better done than your grandmother's was when she watched her cooking all the afternoon.

The Gold Medal Glenwood is actually two ranges in one—a complete coal range combined with a gas section that gives you four additional burners in the cooking top, and a gas oven and broiler above, regulated by the Glenwood AutomatiCook.

Thus you don't have to give up the comfort of having a cosy coal fire in your kitchen in winter but, at the same time, you will have a range that brings you all the advantages of gas whenever you want to use it.

Come in and let us show you the complete line of Glenwood coal ranges that we have on hand in addition to these famous combination Gold Medal models.

ITINERANT TREE EXPERTS

State Entomologist Warns That They Do More Harm Than Good

Dr. H. E. Pierson, State entomologist, says that complaints are continually being received by the department in regards to work being done by itinerant self-named tree experts who are apparently finding tree lovers in Maine easy people to prey upon.

"For the most part these so called tree experts are untrained men who know little or nothing about trees and whose only interest is to charge exorbitant prices for work which usually leaves the trees in far worse condition than when found," continued Dr. Pierson.

"Neither the Federal Government, the State, nor the University of Maine have any men carrying on this kind of work in the State so that men posing as representing these agencies are doing so unlawfully. There are several reputable concerns doing tree surgery work in the State and property owners are advised to be sure that they employ only concerns whose men are trained to do good work."

BROADCAST OF KNOX-LINCOLN

Clifton Walker, 4-H Club Champion, of Alna, Told Interesting Story, Over Station WLBS

This interesting talk on the work of the 4-H Club accomplishments by a successful Alna boy, Clifton Walker, was broadcast over WLBS, Bangor May 29 and is published complete because of its appeal to the boys and girls of the twin county union.

I was a member of the Alna Boys Farming 4-H Club of Lincoln County for the years 1923, 1925 and 1926. My specialty was red kidney beans. When I first joined the club I did not know so very much about raising beans, but by the time I got through with club work I considered myself quite an authority on the subject.

That first year in club work I did fairly well. In the fall I tried my skill at selecting beans for exhibit. The first place at which I exhibited was Lincoln County Fair. The first prize which I won there encouraged me so much that I picked over some more beans and sent two exhibits to the State Seed Show. I won a third prize in the 4-H club exhibit and a fifth in the general exhibit, I thought that was a good start.

In 1925 I raised some more beans and won the county championship in the garden project, for at that time beans were classified under the garden project. That placed a field crop in competition with garden crops which was rather unfair to the garden project.

Now, bean raising is a separate project. Anyway, I won the county championship in the garden project and did it with beans. I came to the State Club Contest at Orono and won third prize in the garden project. While at the State Contest, I spoke at the banquet. I did very well with my exhibits that year. I spent a great deal of time picking over beans and selecting the very best for my exhibits. I felt more than rewarded for my efforts when I won first prize at the State Seed Show.

In 1926 I continued my work with beans and added potatoes as a second project. I won county championship in each of these projects. I won second at the State Club Contest in the garden project, and for the second time in succession won first at the State Seed Show on my exhibit of beans.

That fall I went to Springfield to the Maine 4-H Camp. We lived out on the grounds in army tents and had a wonderful time. Our local leader, Clarence Walker, went to Springfield with us that year as one of the chaperones from the state. Almost all of the boys in this club have been to Springfield. The trip has meant a great deal to them.

The Alna Boys Farming Club has been very successful. It was organized in the early spring of 1923 by the county agent, Ralph Wentworth. The local leader that year was Mrs. MacDonald who is now Club Project leader in Knox-Lincoln Counties. The club had a hard time that year. It was new work for us all, and we had to learn by experience how to carry on our work successfully. We enrolled in a wide variety of projects. For various reasons several of the fellows did not make a success of their work. One boy, who had enrolled in chick raising, sent away and bought expensive eggs for hatching. He secured only three or four chickens from two dozen of the eggs. Another difficult part of the work was keeping records especially in the pig and chick raising projects. However, we had laid a good foundation for the future.

The next year Clarence Walker became local leader. The work went a little better that year. We had one county champion, Maynard Albee. Again we had considerable variety of projects and, for that reason, were unable to get a club charter. For the first year, almost all of the boys have raised beans. A few have carried additional projects. We secured our club charter in 1925 and now have earned three seals of achievement.

Just to prove how well the Alna boys know beans I will give you our record at the State Seed Show. During the last four years, under 4-H club exhibits of beans, our exhibits have been awarded four first prizes, six second prizes, and seven third prizes. The first prize was won in 1927 by Gregory MacDonald and in 1928 by Leon Pickard. The boys are working hard and hoping to keep this honor in our club a while longer. I think that the success of our club has been due to a large extent, to the interest and efforts of our county agent, Ralph C. Wentworth, and our local leader, Clarence Walker.

Our club boys get together at club meetings and have a good social time. They have worked and played together so much that they have formed a friendly unit. The parents and neighbors of the club members have become interested in the work of the club. When the boys win prizes the people of the community are almost as proud as the club members themselves. In addition to that, when our boys go to club contests they feel that they are representing not only the home club but the whole community.

The 4-H club work gets the young folks interested in some useful work and teaches them some practical methods. The club tries to make the farm work more interesting for the boys. The competitive spirit tends to help this interest along. The boys of our club learned a lot about raising beans from lectures and demonstrations. They learned how to test soil for acidity and the value of lime or acid soils. From various sources we learned the best methods of fertilization, the importance of seed selection and how to prepare attractive exhibits.

Our club interested the older folks in farm bureau and modern and more scientific methods of farm management. The parents of the club folks became very much interested in the larger yields and better quality beans which their boys secured by seed selection, the use of lime, and more modern methods of fertilization. The fathers tried out the methods which their boys had used. They secured good results and passed the information along to their neighbors. Thus the whole community gradually learned more about modern methods of bean raising. The farmers are now getting information from the county agent concerning almost all branches of farm work.

MRS. OLIVE YOUNG

Oliver J. (Littlehale), widow of Capt. Charles E. Young, died last Tuesday at 35 State street where she had made her home with her sister, Mrs. Caroline Crawford, since the death of her husband two years ago. For 40 years she had borne the cross of rheumatism and during the last 12 years had been unable to walk. The suffering that came to but few persons had been her lot as the end slowly approached, but the cheerful disposition which had made her so greatly beloved did not fail her in this emergency and no complaint passed her lips.

The deceased was born in East Union Oct. 4, 1858, daughter of George S. and Jane Whitney (Robinson) Littlehale. She was married to Capt. Young in 1877 and they lived in this city until 1911, when they moved to South Hope. They also made their home in East Union for a number of years before returning to Rockland in 1926.

Mrs. Young is survived by a brother, James Littlehale, of Ashington, two sisters, Mrs. Cora Halstock of Massachusetts and Mrs. Caroline Crawford of Rockland; and a granddaughter, Mrs. Charles McIntosh of Rockland.

The funeral services were held Thursday Rev. Jesse Kenderdine officiating. The besturners were Ernest C. Davis, Col. Walter H. Butler, Frank P. Butler and A. R. Baehedler. The burial was in the family lot at East Union.

Mrs. Young's love of poetry found expression in her own ability to write verses of fine feeling. Her ordinary ment and it was fitting that several poems of her own composition should be read at the funeral. This was done with much expression by Mr. Kenderdine.

FOUGHT TO THE LAST DITCH

Forty Club Warriors Defeated By Narrow Margin By Portland's Capable Legionnaires

There was war to the teeth and apparently had no bad effects on the total.

The second string was another story, the Legionnaires rolling 972 to the locals' 956 and this in spite of Orff's 116. Irving Beech, a former Portland boy and favorite of both groups, played Bo Peep this string and lost a whole flock of good natured goats. He did some marvelous sharpshooting where the pins were not. The Big Forty Club lead was materially cut down and in the last string hard fought all the way, the 40 men had the advantage until this Dow, Portland anchor man, took an extra clinic in his belt and contributed the evening's high total of 135 and winning the match by five pins.

THE LEWISTON

A Story Reminiscent of the Earlier Days of Penobscot Navigation

Out of the columns of the Bangor Commercial the other day looked a fine picture of the good old steamer Lewiston. The article read thus:

Again, with this cut of the sturdy old steamer Lewiston which safely transported thousands of residents of Bangor and the rest of the Penobscot river and bay ports to and from Boston, this paper is able to stir a responsive chord in the hearts of the older residents. It is true, as was said in a previous sketch, the Penobscot became the queen of the fleet and retained that proud position so long as the side-wheel fleet continued to operate between Boston and the Penobscot, but there was about the Lewiston, a cozy, homelike character that, offered as she was by men who were all experts in their positions, gave her a distinction that no other steamer of the Boston & Bangor S.S. Co. fleet could take away from her.

The writer well remembers what a good seaman she was, even if she were not as fast as the handsome, swifter new turbines later placed on the route. It was on the Lewiston that the writer made his first trip to the Hub as a green young cub reporter. When October's winds blew a gale, he boarded the Lewiston and trusted himself to the late Capt. Mark Ingraham, one of the very finest of the fleet's commanders and it so happened, returned home on the same steamer. Steward Warner was in charge of the cuisine, ably assisted by Harry Nevins of Bucksport and these, with Capt. Ingraham's staff of courteous and capable seamen, provided comfort and convenience during both trips.

When Thursday afternoon came around and it was time to leave Boston on the return there was such a "heavy sea on outside" that the officials of the line, always extremely careful of the safety of their passengers and freight as well as their own, delayed the casting off of the steamer's hawsers. But after an hour's wait they decided to try it and the Lewiston sailed steadily down the harbor and turned her nose toward the Gulf of Maine.

Off Cape Ann, finding the sea too rough for comfort, the steamer ran behind the cape and anchored in Gloucester harbor. As the anchor chains raced out through the hawse-holes an elderly woman who was making her first trip by water, anxiously asked Mrs. Berry, the stewardess what was going on. "Only run into Cape Ann," was the calm reply and the old lady came back with a frightened gasp to inquire, "Think we are going to sink?"

It proved the joke of the trip. The steamer remained at anchor in Gloucester roads until Saturday at midnight, when the anchor was hauled up and the voyagers, having been splendidly cared for by the officers of the ship, completed the journey to Bangor and intermediate ports. Nobody who was on that trip will ever forget the uniform kindness of Capt. Mark Ingraham and his crew, helping the passengers to spend what might have been a very tedious time while waiting for favorable conditions to again venture forth on the deep. Meanwhile those who had read the poem regarding Norman's Woe, enjoyed watching from a safe distance the mighty breakers dash impotently against its rough face.

While anchored in the harbor it became necessary for Steward Warner to replenish the larder, which had been stocked for an overnight run to the Penobscot ports. There was one passenger who insisted that he be put ashore to complete his trip in quicker time by rail and with him, the genial steward invited the young newspaper man to go ashore with them. It proved his only visit to the prosperous city on Cape Ann and afforded an enjoyable experience in the monotony of waiting for the resumption of the trip.

SEEING THE FLYERS

A Courier-Gazette Reporter Has a Look At the Green Flash and Yellow Bird

Straying from the beaten path for a few hours Saturday I motored to Old Orchard to catch a glimpse of the Green Flash and the Yellow Bird before they should embark on their trans-Atlantic flight. The trip was well timed, for on the following day 100,000 other persons were inspired with the same idea, and if you are familiar with the present condition of the road between Portland and Old Orchard Beach, you will not need to be told what traffic conditions were like.

Saturday the conditions for sight-seeing were much more favorable. The number of spectators at the time of my visit probably did not exceed 500, and 429 of them appeared to be newspaper men and photographers, not a few of whom were recently members of the Army of Occupation at North Haven.

Without revealing my identity I asked a few questions as to the North Haven invasion, and replies were invariably of a character which does not look well in a family newspaper. The unsuccessful attempts to interview and photograph Col. Lindbergh were had enough but the food famine which marked the closing hours of the newspapermen's stay on the island left them in anything but a happy frame of mind.

Somebody slapped me familiarly on the back, and with much pleasure I recognized Alton H. Blackinton, who has traveled far and wide since the days when he had a photograph studio over the old Courier-Gazette office. He established his reputation as a press photographer while on the staff of the Boston Herald and some fine specimens of his photographic skill found their way into the pages of that paper. Today Mr. Blackinton has a news service of his own handling feature stories and illustrations, which finds a ready market in Boston and other newspapers. Between whistles Mr. Blackinton appears before the public in a series of highly interesting lectures based upon his experiences as a press photographer in this country and while he was in Europe.

Now about the flyers. I found the Green Flash parked in Harry Jones' hangar separated from the souvenir hunters by a rope and a cop. Mr. Jones was kind enough to whisper magic words into the policeman's ear and I was admitted inside of the roped enclosure. The Green Flash is now an all green machine as many persons might infer. The body is green with the exception of the tail, which, with the wings is painted in the familiar colors of Tydol, which it advertises. If I remember correctly the cop told me that the Green Flash carries 12 barrels of gasoline when equipped for an ocean voyage. I did not see either Roger Q. Williams or Lewis Yancy, the Green Flash pilots, but I did bring away as souvenir, a pencil which one of them had just been using. In order that I might not be considered in the vandal class I left one of my own pencils, which exceeded by a trifle the length of the one I appropriated.

If the Green Flash ever makes the ocean trip, and at least one of the newspaper men seemed a bit skeptical about it, the pilots will probably write notes to each other with a Courier-Gazette pencil which heretofore has had none but the most prosaic career.

The Yellow Bird, which is just as yellow as its name indicates, is manned by five Ehrenkrantz and body unable to speak the French language was admitted inside of the ropes. Entrance to the Yellow Bird was a simple matter of stepping through a side door, but for the life of me I don't understand now how they get aboard of the Green Flash. The Yellow Bird, by the way, has across its body a diagonal streak painted in the French national colors. I talked with a young man in khaki who said he was interpreter but he wasn't apparently interpreting anything for the public benefit.

There was another bird on the beach which served somewhat to distract attention from the Green Flash and the Yellow Bird. It was what the aeronautical world knows as a "glider," only this one was sloop rigged, and was said to be the first of its kind in existence. The box, a gentleman of foreign appearance appeared to have two reasons for not taking the air. One was that there was not enough wind, and the other was that there was too much wind. Just when he will find conditions to suit his finical taste nobody seemed willing to guess, but if he has the proper amount of judgment he will keep the critter anchored to the sand.

The photographers and newspaper men were, as is insisted Saturday that he finally wheeled the glider down onto the beach and posed for pictures. He also tried to pose for the $40,000 Fox Movietone, which, as all patrons of the local theatres know, not only shows the pictures but reproduces the sounds. The apparatus is mounted on a truck and with 100 feet of cable are able to connect up with almost anything. The magazine holds 1,000 feet of negative, as compared with 200 feet held by the average camera.

Prof. Whoosit, the proprietor of the glider, undoubtedly has extraordinary courage, or he wouldn't be messing around with that kind of a craft, but all efforts to get him to make a speech before the microphone proved a flat failure.

My arrival at the beach occurred at the same moment as the departure of the Sikorsky plane which had visited Rockland earlier in the day, and which was then on its way westward. I made the trip to Old Orchard, in company with Manley T. Perry, who knows a thing or two about manipulating a car in traffic with a minimum loss of time. By way of diversion we made a 15-minute flight over Old Orchard Beach in Harry Jones' cabin plane. Homeward bound we shore-dinnered at "The Tarry-a-While" at Dunstan's Corner, a resort which we can heartily recommend to anybody who happens to be traveling in that vicinity. W.

LADY ASTOR'S CHANCES

A dispatch to the London Daily Express from Plymouth said that Lady Astor, American born peeress, probably would retain her seat in the House of Commons from the Sutton division constituency, but her Liberal and Socialist opponents were giving her a race. Lady Astor has had a number of hits with the Socialists and these identified with the liquor interests the dispatch said citing one instance when Lord Astor came upon his wife surrounded by a group of workmen one of whom, six feet tall, was standing holding a labor poster over his head. She snatched it from him and tore it into bits.

MAJESTIC BUYS MOST

Records show that the Grigsby-Grumow Company is the largest buyer of precision equipment for the testing of receivers of any radio manufacturer in the world. This is just another added bit of proof that Majestic performance and Majestic reputation is not built on good luck but on the careful preparation necessary to produce the finest radio receiver that it is possible to build.

Every third step in the production of Majestic is an inspection, and there are 700 expert inspectors for all operations. Factory operatives now number a little over 7000 which gives an inspector for every 10 employees in the six plants. Thus the radio public is assured that in purchasing a Majestic it is buying a set from which all flaws have been most painstakingly eliminated before the set ever leaves the Grigsby-Grumow Company's plant.

H. B. Richmond, treasurer of the General Radio Company, Cambridge, Mass., recently wrote the following letter to the Grigsby-Grumow Company:

"Thank you for your recent order for 12 additional sets of precision capacity bridges and precision condensers, together with the necessary oscillators. I am very sorry to have to tell you that we can ship only a few of these units, and that it may be another four weeks before the remainder can be shipped.

I realize that any explanation will be of little value to you in increasing your output, and that is the test equipment you desire. I cannot resist telling you, however, that your ambitious manufacturing schedule and the amount of attention you are giving to the use of precision equipment in your production tests has used up all of our reserve supply of precision equipment in this class.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who need it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colics and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

sin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.
